TCP EXPRESSES THANKS

The Tuscaloosa Community Players expresses thanks to the Shelton State English faculty for their work on DEATH OF A SALESMAN in area high school English classes. Dean Howington and Paul Looney report that hundreds of local high school students attended the play after hearing presentations by members of Shelton's English department. Glenn Johnson, a member of the college Readers' Theatre group, also worked on the DEATH OF A SALESMAN program.

DECK ELECTED TO STATEWIDE OFFICE

Sharon Deck, chairman of the Humanities Division of Shelton State Community College, was elected secretary of the Alabama Association of Junior and Community Chairpersons at the recent convention in Birmingham.

LOCAL STUDENTS ACCEPTED INTO ASFA

Two local Tuscaloosa youths who have been active in Shelton's acting classes for young people were selected into the Alabama School of Fine Arts in Birmingham, Alabama. The ASFA offers young people in grades 7-12 the opportunity to study theatre arts along with high school academic courses.

Holly Ann Arnbert and Elizabeth Rainey, students of Stusan Carol Brown, will attend ASFA in the fall.

SCHOLARSHIP AUDITIONS

Auditions for Performing Art Scholarships at Shelton State Junior College will be May 4. Scholarships are available in voice, piano, band and choral. Any student who is interested in a scholarship should contact the main office of the college or Syble Coats, chairman of the department of music.

FOUNDATIONS TO MEET

The Shelton State Foundation will meet Thursday, May 2, at 4 p.m. in Dr. Sumner's office at the Junior College Division. A final report of Phase One of the Capital Campaign Fund drive will be given. Any faculty member of the college who would like to offer ideas, suggestions should contact one of the Foundation members.

APPALACHAIN WOMEN EXHIBIT AT SHELTON

Five Appalachain women, ages 14 through 73, speak candidly, eloquently, of their lives in this unique exhibit, APPALACHAIN WOMEN: THREE GENERATIONS, which is currently on exhibit at the library of the Junior College Division.

These women, Bertha, Rena, Luveena, Wanda and Kay, are related to one another by ties of blood and community. They have lived all their lives near Whitesburg, Kentucky, and represent three generations of mountain women: Bertha and Rena, born before the impact of industrailzation; Luveena growing up in the 1930's; Wanda just coming to maturity; and Kay growing up in the Appalachia of today.

a 40-minute film by Elizabeth Barret, will be shown on Wednesday, May 8, at 10 a.m. in the library. The film, called "a story of emotion and drama with importance for working people everywhere," is excellent for those interested in women in nontraditional roles, women's history, labor studies, and women as a force for social change. Interested individuals or groups may alos make arrangements to use the film at times other than the May showing.

READERS THEATRE PLANNED

In conjunction with the exhibit, APPALACHAIN WOMEN: THREE GENERATIONS, the Readers' Theatre of the college will present a brief and informal program of readings based on the interviews with five women featured in the exhibit. The program will be Thursday, May 9, at 7:30 p.m. in the library. A reception for the audience will follow.
